What Is DeFi ?

DeFi, short for decentralized finance, can be thought of as the financial infrastructure of the cryptocurrency landscape.

Over time, cryptocurrency proponents plan to build out the DeFi ecosystem to the extent that it will rival traditional banking operations.

The Growth Of DeFi

In 2020, the growth of DeFi took the financial world by storm, In fact, Total Value Locked (TVL) a measure of DeFi transaction value grew by 14 x in 2020, And in 2021, TVL more than quadrupled to a total value of $112.07 billion at its peak.

So if you want to learn about the most important trends in the DeFi space, read on.

Traditional Financial Products Enter The DeFi Landscape

In the traditional financial markets, the total value of financial derivatives is estimated by some to be 10x larger than global GDP. Essentially, derivatives dwarf the value of regular financial markets, The DeFi derivatives market, on the other hand, is still in its infancy, The TVL of the DeFi derivatives market is currently $39.23 billion, or roughly 20% of the total DeFi market, But its recent growth has been very impressive.

The TVL of the DeFi derivatives market was around $25 billion in late 2020, Maker is the largest player in this market. It makes up over 20% of the total DeFi derivatives market.

This Institutional Phase ought to inevitably observe even governments' national banks use Bitcoin as a hold resource close by gold, fiat monetary standards, obligation instruments, and so on. The development of the Bitcoin biological system after some time has converted into a gigantic increment in selection and worth. Be that as it may, with everchanging exchange charges, high unpredictability, long affirmation times, and a deflationary financial model, Bitcoin stays a superior store of significant worth than a money for every day use.
